IN REMOVAL PROCEEDINGS

APPEAL

ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT: Philip Smith, Esquire

APPLICATION: Asylum

ORDER:

PER CURIAM. This record is before us on remand from the United States Court of Appeals for the (b) (6). The court, in a published decision, determined that the Immigration Judge erred in his analysis of the respondent's eligibility for asylum under section 208 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1158. (b) (6) v. Mukasey, (b) (6). Specifically, the court found that the Immigration Judge erred in holding that the respondent's untimely filing of his asylum application was not excused under the changed circumstances exception "solely because his subjective intent to apply for asylum – and subjective fear – existed before the expiration of the one-year application period." Id. at (b) (6). The court also determined that the Immigration Judge's alternative denial of the application on its merits was in error because he improperly placed the burden on the respondent "to disprove the reasonableness of internal relocation" in Senegal. Id. at 1065.

The court remanded the record for a determination of whether the respondent demonstrated changed circumstances and, if so, whether he applied for asylum within a reasonable period. In addition, the court remanded for proper consideration of the placement of the burden for internal relocation.¹ In light of the court's decision, we find that the record should be remanded to the Immigration Court for additional fact-finding and for further consideration of the respondent's asylum application. See 8 C.F.R. § 1003.1(d)(3)(iv) (stating that the Board may not engage in fact-finding in the course of deciding appeals except for taking administrative notice of commonly known facts).

Accordingly, our June 30, 2004, order in which we dismissed the respondent appeal is hereby vacated insofar as it is inconsistent with the court's decision.

¹ The court upheld the Immigration Judge's decision to deny the application for withholding of removal under section 241(b)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b)(3), as well as our November 4, 2004, decision to deny the respondent's motion to reopen.

(b) (6)

FURTHER ORDER: The record is remanded to the Immigration Judge for further proceedings not inconsistent with this decision or that of the circuit court.
